PREFACE

You as students have just spent a year in this high school. It is contended that only those who relinquished part of their life during this year truly profited from this period. And of those whose epitaph must read "I wandered without purpose through the halls of Littleton Sr. High" it can be said that they lost this vital year in their life.

Those who left part of their life reaped returns for it many times over. An integral part of these benefits are the memories accumulated over the period. The 1963 CORLIONIS is an attempt to recapture some of these memories.

If you merely wandered aimlessly through the halls, the photographs on the following pages may be unfamiliar. This book will then only be a monument to your lost year. But if you relinquished part of your life during the preceding year, then the 1963 CORLIONIS should recount this portion of your life. If so, then now take time to wander through the pages of this volume.

Each individual of our generation will experience more in his lifetime than did his predecessors. The challenges will be unrivaled, the problems more complex, and the events more rapid in coming. This will require that we truly live each day, not just wander through them.

As your life nears its conclusion, a part relinquished here, a part relinquished there, may your memories be so vast that you are unable to wander through them all.

DEDICATED TO MR. G.C. BALLIETT

The dedication of the 1963 CORLIONIS is designed to be a tribute to the teaching ability of Mr. G. C. Balliett, and to the man himself.

It is considered a talent when a teacher can create in students a definite interest in a subject. Contemporary civilization is a course from which more is derived when the student applies individual initiative because of his own interest in the subject matter. At the present time when knowledge of world affairs, economics, and the arts is of increasing value to the individual, an instructor who can create in students this interest is to be commended. Mr. Balliett is such an instructor.

It is also considered conducive to learning when a student feels that he is being challenged. Mr. Balliett has the unique capacity to institute in the individual this impression.

G. C. Balliett is a man set apart from others. He is among the few who have the strength of character to follow their own directives and convictions. In this age of conformity, this attribute alone places a man above others.

A man's wit is usually a measure of the man. Mr. Balliett's acute mind emits a quick, sharp, and occasionally satirical wit. Although his wit is often somewhat corny, it must be acknowledged that even corny humor is demonstrable of a unique type of intellect.

College students rarely fail to express their gratitude for having been in Mr. Balliett's class. The experience and preparation for college which they gained has proven to be invaluable.

Our generation has been charged with grave responsibilities in the world of the future. And yet it has been ascertained that we are unprepared to accept the responsibilities and to solve the problems facing us. In this respect, the value of instructors such as Mr. Balliett cannot be fully appreciated.

This is a dedication of a book...to a brilliant man...as a tribute to his teaching ability and to his character.

"...and if I buy one hundred shares of Kennecott at..."

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1963

This book records many of the activities that you will remember and hold dear throughout your lifetime. At this time the things that you are depicting in the CORLIONIS appear to many of you to be matters of great moment. Later they will appear to be of much less importance and you will wonder why you were so concerned about them. This is because life brings many changes and as you move on into another phase of your life, new things will confront you that will absorb you and render less important relatively, the events of your high school days.

Such changes do not indicate that your high school experiences are not important. They are basic to your later life and the solution of its problems. These remarks should in no way indicate that we are trying to be over serious or to in any way curtail the enjoyment of your high school days. They are simply to indicate that the formal closing of your high school experiences, of which this book is a part, are a portal to a new phase of your life which will be now the most important one for sometime to come, because it will be the present and a new challenge.

Our best wishes go to all of you as you face the future and realize more and more, as you near the end of your senior year, the importance of your high school education.

Cordially.

MARK WHO?

Hi Cindy,

Cindy is full of sin. Funny huh! Brain storm!!
That sun was funny that day we met you.
I was really scared. Duh!

I sure hope this summer lasts a long, long, long time. We sure need a vacation, huh! I don't know what I'm going to do when Russ goes to college. Boo, hoo, I'm crying real tears. Sad story!
Think of all the fun we'll have this summer.
We'll all have money floating around us from working so hard, Ha Ha! We can buy clothes and two pieces too, if we ever loose weight. (That will be the day) although I don't see why you want to loose it. Just think of all the baseball games we'll be able to play.

We'll have to go on that bicycle trip sometime, to get all limbered up for Pom Pom. Don't forget know, I'm going to hold you up on that.

I sure am glad you moved in though, truthfully. We needed someone because Sharon + Karen were like two eyes on a face.

Now I will tell you what every body says but saying it truthfully. I really am glad I met you and stay as sweet and cute as you are. Well that's the extent of my vocabulary.

your friend always

Karol + Russ
